CISION Enquête : l'économie chinoise devient le moteur de l'économie mondiale

BEIJING, 11 août 2022 /PRNewswire/ -- Environ 78,34 % des personnes interrogées dans 22 pays pensent que l'économie chinoise est devenue le moteur de l'économie mondiale, selon une enquête conjointe menée par le Think Tank CGTN et l'Institut chinois d'opinion publique de l'Université Renmin de Chine.

L'enquête a interrogé des personnes âgées de 38,64 ans en moyenne, issues de pays développés tels que les États-Unis, le Royaume-Uni, l'Australie et le Japon, ainsi que de pays en développement tels que le Brésil, l'Inde, les Émirats arabes unis et l'Afrique du Sud.

Plus de la moitié des personnes interrogées ont fait des études supérieures, 54,71 % d'entre elles étant titulaires d'une licence ou d'un diplôme supérieur, dont 15,22 % de masters et de doctorats.

Le moteur économique du monde

L'enquête a montré que 91,46 % des personnes interrogées en Afrique ont une haute opinion des réalisations économiques de la Chine, estimant que la Chine est devenue le moteur économique du monde. Les personnes interrogées en Europe suivent de près avec une part de 81,6 %, tandis que les personnes interrogées en Amérique du Nord se classent en troisième position avec 78,09 %.

People from countries in the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) spoke highly of China's economic achievements. Meanwhile, 84.02 percent of respondents from developing countries have confidence in the Chinese economy, more than those from developed countries.

Hard work pays off

The overwhelming majority of respondents have a positive impression of the Chinese people. 84.42 percent of African respondents and 71.18 percent of European respondents believe the Chinese people are hardworking and self-motivated.

China's gross domestic product per capita has increased from $6,100 to more than $12,000 over the past 10 years, which 76.65 percent of respondents believe is remarkable. In the survey, over 60 percent of respondents from five continents believe China is getting richer.

China managed to lift nearly 100 million people in rural areas out of poverty in the past decade. The vast majority of global respondents believed the top two reasons for the historic achievement were that China's economy maintains rapid growth and that Chinese leaders are determined and marching toward their goals.
